

POWER MONITOR

Red and black test leads are connected from the power monitor to the smartphone's internal circuit board. The red lead connects to a blue component, and the black lead connects to a black component. The power monitor has a small screen and several ports on its side.